

THE NEED TO BELONG

Cleveland lost its one remaining LGBTQ club in 2017 and it has not yet been replaced, leaving Cleveland's LGBTQ population without a larger venue for drag performances, events, and dancing. The lack of a community focal point and the geographic dispersal of Cleveland's population creates a palpable difficulty ability to agglomerate resources in the LGBTQ community.

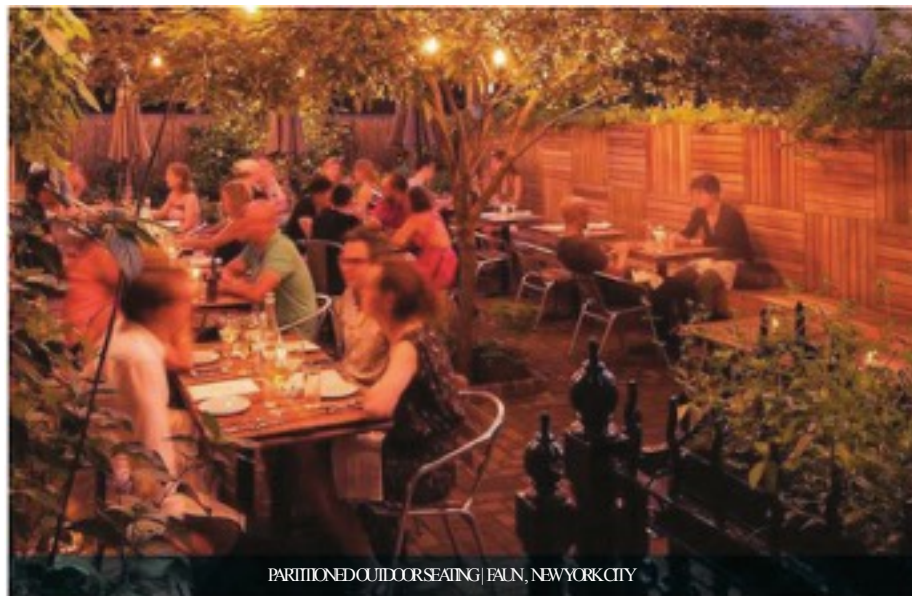

THE NEED FOR SERVICES

The community is also missing critical services to support and care for their own. Missing links in the infrastructure include the lack of an LGBTQ pharmacy and the lack of shelters and housing for LGBT youth.

Access to medications such as PREP or hormone therapy, mental health services, and a safe place to rest your head should not seem impossible because for many these vital services provide hope.
